DETAILED ACTION

1. This office action is in response to applicant's communication of July 9, 2001.

Original claims 1-21 are pending and have been examined. The rejections are stated below.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

2. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

3. Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory Subject matter.

35 USC 101 requires that in order to be patentable the invention must be a "new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof" (emphasis added).

Claims 1-21 are drawn to "an electronic market system, method and a computer program product for trading of securities comprises: a client station for entering a directed order to begin a negotiation process with a selected quoting market participant; a server system receiving the directed order, the server system delivering the order, as a liability or non-liability order in accordance with how the selected quoting market participant chooses to receive directed orders". As such the claimed invention is directed to a judicial exception to 35 U.S.C. 101 (i.e., an abstract idea, natural phenomenon, or law of nature) and is not directed to a practical application of such judicial exception because the claims do not require any physical transformation and the invention as claimed does not produce a useful, concrete, and tangible result.

The Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit issued opinions in State Street Bank & Trust Co. v. Signature Financial Group Inc., 149 F. 3d 1368, 47 USPQ2d 1596 (Fed. Cir. 1998) and

AT&T Corp. v. Excel Communications, Inc., 172 F.3d 1352, 50 USPQ2d 1447 (Fed. Cir. 1999).

These decisions explained that, to be eligible for patent protection, the claimed invention as a whole must accomplish a practical application. That is, it must produce a “useful, concrete and tangible result.” State Street, 149 F.3d at 1373-74, 47 USPQ2d at 1601 02. To satisfy section 101 requirements, the claim must be for a practical application of the § 101 judicial exception, which can be identified in various ways: (a) The claimed invention “transforms” an article or physical object to a different state or thing. (b) The claimed invention otherwise produces a useful, concrete and tangible result, based on the factors discussed below.

The USPTO’s official interpretation of the utility requirement provides that the utility of an invention has to be (i) specific, (ii) substantial and (iii) credible. See MPEP § 2107. The claimed invention does not meet this requirement.

The tangible requirement does require that the claim must recite more than a § 101 judicial exception, in that the process claim must set forth a practical application of that § 101 judicial exception to produce a real-world result. Benson, 409 U.S. at 71-72, 175 USPQ at 676-77 (invention ineligible because had “no substantial practical application”). It is not clear as to what real world result is produced by implementing the claimed invention. The last step of delivering the order does not imply trading.

For an invention to produce a “concrete” result, the process must have a result that can be substantially repeatable or the process must substantially produce the same result again. In re Swartz, 232 F.3d 862, 864, 56 USPQ2d 1703, 1704 (Fed. Cir. 2000) (where asserted result produced by the claimed invention is “irreproducible” claim should be rejected under section 101). The opposite of “concrete” is unrepeatable or unpredictable. The limitations of the claimed invention are not sufficiently precise to guarantee that result that is substantially repeatable or the process produces the same result again.

There is no useful, concrete and tangible result produced from implementing the steps of the claimed invention. The dependent claims are rejected for the same reason and by way of dependency on a rejected independent claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

4. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

5. Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being incomplete for omitting essential elements, such omission amounting to a gap between the elements. See MPEP § 2172.01. The omitted elements are: Claims 1-21 recite the limitation "delivering the order, as a liability or non-liability order". However the step for determining the order, as a liability or non-liability order is missing in these claims. Also it is not clear what the applicants mean by the terms "a liability order" and "non-liability order". Appropriate clarification/correction is required.

Claims 2-3, 13, and 18 recite "MMID". It is not clear what the applicants mean by MMID. Appropriate clarification/correction is required.

Claims 9-10, 14-15 and 19-20 recite "at least one normal unit of trading in excess of an attributable quote/order". It is not clear what the applicants mean by "attributable quote/order" and "at least one normal unit of trading in excess of an attributable quote/order". Is the normal unit of trading a measure of price or is it a measure of volume. Appropriate clarification/correction is required.

In view of these ambiguities the examiner is unable to provide art rejections for these claims.
